A BRIEF OVERVIEW

Here are some highlights of the legally binding License between you (or the Organization you represent) and FMA, Inc. (doing business as WeatherVideoHD.TV), a provider of royalty free video and photography (Imagery) licenses. Below, we describe in detail how you, as a Registered Account Owner, may acquire permission to employ Imagery for Permitted Uses in Derivative Works, via a royalty free, perpetual, worldwide, all media (except as restricted), non-exclusive, non-transferable royalty free license.

Imagery provided via WeatherVideoHD.TV are not sold, but licensed for Permitted Uses. Copyright remains with WeatherVideoHD.TV or its contributors for whom we act as agents. Personnel and property releases, if required, are not included as part of the License and remain the responsibility of the License purchasers. A number of offerings are restricted for editorial or classroom usage only, and it is your responsibility to honor this restriction. As the Imagery are marketed by us for educational use, they may not be used in classrooms under 'Fair Use' in classroom, online or distance learning applications without licensing. The restriction against 'Fair Use' does not extend to Comps or Screeners with visible watermarks. A license is not valid until payment is arranged. Imagery are sold on an 'as is' basis. There are no refunds for any Imagery licensed but not used. Our Permitted Uses and “Thou Shalt Nots” for the licensed Imagery are listed below. Credits are always appreciated and sometimes required by specific contributors.

This License is a contract between you and FMA, Inc., dba WeatherVideoHD.TV, which stipulates our mutual rights and obligations. By registering as an Account Owner, and agreeing to this License, you do so on behalf of yourself, personally, or the organization for which you are acting as purchasing agent. Please read this document carefully. Not doing so will not absolve you if you fail to honor its provisions.

Definition of Terms

First, for convenience, let us define some of the terms, used throughout this document.

License – This conventional License for Download and Use (the License) includes, by incorporation, the Site's Terms and Conditions for Use and Privacy Policy, and describes the mutual obligations of the Licensor and Licensee. The License is automatically agreed upon during Registration, a requirement before you may utilize any Imagery for Permitted Uses and is not valid until payment is arranged.

Licensor - FMA, Inc., doing business as www.WeatherVideoHD.TV (the Site), a Corporation located in the State of Colorado, USA is the Licensor of the Imagery and supporting information available from the Site. When we use the terms we, us and our, the Company and the Site, this is to whom we are referring.

Licensee - The customer (Registered Account Owner) who executes the License to allow the permitted uses of Imagery is also referred to by the terms the client, the customer, the user, you and yours.

Imagery- As used in this License, Imagery refers to any video, photograph or illustration downloaded from this Site (or alternately provided on electronic media via courier), including those in Review Bins, downloaded Comp/Screeners files, and licensed Imagery. Imagery are provided in a variety of formats, codecs, aspect ratios and resolutions, either with or without copyright watermarks.

Comps/Screeners - Complimentary watermarked files made available at no charge for evaluation may be used in mocks ups, storyboards, rough cuts and time lines to gauge their suitability for a Derivative Work. They may be shared in an unaltered form with clients or third parties as long as watermarks are retained.

Review Bins – Collections of selected Imagery assembled in a convenient location (a URL) to facilitate the selection processes. These URLs may be shared with clients and other third parties at no charge to you.

Permitted Uses - These are the uses of Imagery in Derivative Works that are specifically allowed. If a proposed use is not explicitly listed, the potential Licensee should check with us for clarification. However, our License is extremely broad, allowing Imagery use in virtually any derivative work. Permitted Uses are subject to change over time at our sole discretion, but only affect sequent Licenses. Specific Non-permitted Uses are also listed below.

Derivative Work - The Licensee is allowed to include the Imagery, in an altered or unaltered form, within any work that represents a new creation that represents an independently authored work or product created by the Licensee that is a Permitted Use. There are no quantity limitations for distribution once the Imagery is part of a Derivative Work. A mere compilation of Imagery, either altered or unaltered, such as part of a stock library, or catalog allowing customers to purchase individual prints or individual or concatenated video, whether or not with rights of further reproduction, shall not constitute a Derivative Work.

Registered Account Owner - In order to execute the License permitting the download of Review Bins or to license Imagery, there must be a Licensee of record. If this is an individual, then we are referring to that one person. If the individual providing the information is representing an Organization by which he/she is employed, then that entity is the legal Registered Account Owner.

Organization - The Organization is the entity that is the Registered Account Owner. This term is difficult to define precisely given the wide variety of organizational structures present in today's governmental, academic and commercial world. For a standard small business or corporation, then that entity represents the Organization. For a multinational corporation, major divisions in each country would require separate Licenses. For a multi-campus university, then each physical campus represents a single Organization. For broadcasters, a network news operation may use Imagery for different programs and divisions but a separate License is required by each O&O and affiliate. Imagery may not be broadcast on network feeds unless incorporated into a story, program or other Derivative Work. For producers, Imagery may be utilized for different productions created for different customers, but the Imagery may not be supplied as stock for their clients to use for their own purposes. For government agencies, a separate License is required for each distinct entity. We reserve the unilateral right to define the organizational boundaries of Imagery usage in a License acquired by an extended Organization. We may, at our sole discretion, but not unreasonably so, limit the breadth of use by various components with a complex organization if a License is executed without prior consultation. If there is any doubt on your part as to where the boundary may be in your Organization, contact: Customer.Service@WeatherVideoHD.TV and we will respond promptly in writing. Our goal is providing fair value to each Licensee, but also preventing abusive unlicensed proliferation.

Grant of Conventional License

This conventional License (that is, not the special educator/weathercaster discount) grants the Licensee, for the Imagery obtained and for which full payment has been arranged, a royalty free, perpetual, worldwide, non-exclusive, non-transferable, all media (unless specifically restricted) license to use, modify and reproduce by inclusion of such Imagery in any Derivative Work under any of the Permitted Uses enumerated below and to distribute the same for an unlimited number of times. The Licensee does not acquire any copyright ownership or equivalent rights to any licensed Imagery.

Royalty Free herein means once payment is made to obtain a License, no further payments are required as long as the terms of the License are honored. There are no “per second” charges for video.

Perpetual herein means that there is no temporal limitation on the use of properly licensed Imagery (with the exception of the unlikely withdrawal of specific Imagery due to the discovery of a possible, threatened or actual infringement previously unknown to us.)

Worldwide herein means the Derivative Works in which the licensed Imagery are included may be distributed and used anywhere, as long as that use would not violate any local laws or ordinances. And, what the heck, we'll throw in the Moon and Mars, too.

Non-exclusive herein means that any Imagery can now and in the future be licensed to any other parties either by us or by any other third party who has obtained rights to license these same Imagery.

Non-transferable herein means unless specifically permitted by us under this License, you may not sell, rent, will, loan, co-utilize, give, sub-license, provide access to or otherwise transfer to anyone besides employees of the Registered Account Owner those licensed Imagery, in either their original or altered form, or the right to use same. The Imagery may not be provided, other than by inclusion in a Derivative Work, to a third party who could then sell or redistribute them either in their original or altered form. You agree to take all reasonable steps to prevent any third party from accessing and/or using the Imagery in your possession outside of the terms of this License.

All Media herein means permission is granted to use any media that now or ever will exist, to distribute or employ the Derivative Works that include the licensed Imagery This includes, but is not limited to, feature films, television news or documentary programs, CD/DVD/Blu-ray discs, commercial websites, distance learning websites, podcasts, streaming video, mobile devices, live performances and lectures, planetarium programs, text books, e-books, magazines, newspapers, advertisements and packaging. Some Imagery may be restricted to editorial usage only, and these are so indicated on the Site. You must remain cognizant of any such restrictions. Since we most certainly have not developed a totally comprehensive list of the specific Permitted Uses that would be acceptable to us, there is a reasonable likelihood that written permission for your use will be granted by us. Just ask.

The Licensee agrees to maintain records to identify any Imagery obtained from the Site, and any restrictions on its use, for as long as the Organization maintains a copy of the Imagery in its files or provides Derivative Works employing that Imagery.

In the case of such termination, the Licensee, once notified, must immediately cease all uses of the Imagery in question, and remove/destroy them from all computers and files within the Organization. If the Organization that is the Registered Account Holder ceases business, files bankruptcy, becomes insolvent and/or assigns its assets for the benefit of its creditors, then we, at our sole discretion, reserve the right to terminate the License.

In the unlikely event that FMA, Inc. receives notice of an actual, potential or threatened claim of copyright infringement on any of its previously licensed Imagery, the Licensee, if so requested by us, agrees to cease using those Imagery for any purpose or in any Derivative Work to the extent that is reasonably possible, and remove them from all computers and files within the Organization.
